Society Treks to South Shore Friday Evening for Benefit Dinner Dance

Mrs. Richard Parsons Heads Committee Sponsoring Gay Affair at Country Club for New Lend-a-Hand Society

QUITE THE gayest event of the early winter season along the South Shore takes place Friday evening . . . when a group of prominents stage a dinner dance at South Shore Country Club . . . with the New North Lend-a-Hand Society as beneficiary.

Mrs. Richard B. Parsons heads the planning committee . . . aided and abetted by Mrs. Howard Key Bartow, Jr., Mrs. Sherwood S. Smith, Mrs. Edwin C. Lincoln, Mrs. William Ball Rice, Mrs. Walter G. Barbour, Mrs. Harold H. Nebauer, Mrs. Brewster W. Bonnell and Mrs. Philip S. Russ.

Reservations are going like the proverbial hot cakes . . . sitting at Mr. and Mrs. Philip Russ' table will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Knowles (Gretchen Bremer), Mr. and Mrs. James Dean, Jr. (Catherine Bartow), Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bartow (Alma Bird), Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bremer (Virginia Badger), Mr. and Mrs. J. Rodman Russ, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Denham, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bowdoin, Alan Ada Dewson and her fiance, Edward Iselin, Emery Stratton, Paul Revere and Clark Hodder.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood S. Smith and Mrs. William R. Whidden are entertaining a joint party . . . including Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hand, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Howes, Jr., Gilbert La Gorce, Carl Buckheister, James Stearns, Frank Hall, Howard W. Hedgdon, George L. Brett, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Marquand Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Day, Mr. and Mrs. George Talbot, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draper, Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Babcock and Doane Arnold.

Dining with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parsons will be Mr. and Mrs. Parker Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. French, Mr. and Mrs. John Coultbard, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Key Bartow, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hendrie Kip, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stark and Dr. and Mrs. Trygve Gunderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Lincoln have invited a party of fourteen to be their guests at the benefit dinner dance. Their group comprises Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wales, Mr. and Mrs. Haven Parker, Mr. and Mrs. C. Roger Burgin.

Also bringing on parties to Friday evening's gala event will be Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Bourne, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blackmur and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newhauer.

MIMI VAN ANTWERP, Ruth Watters and Betty Van Antwerp are among the season's debutantes assisting at many of the benefit affairs. The Van Antwerp twins . . . who have had their formal presentation here . . . a luncheon at the Ritz . . . were introduced to Gotham society on Tuesday by their cousin, Mrs. Kenelm Winslow . . . who entertained at luncheon at the Marguery . . . followed by a cocktail party at Mrs. Winslow's residence.

ALICE "ALLOE" PLIMPTON pours tea for arriving guests at a recent meeting of the junior smart set ushers serving at the popular series of Boston Morning Musicales held at Hotel Statler for the benefit of Boston's School of Occupational Therapy. "Alloe" . . . an attractive blue-eyed blonde . . . is the post-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Plimpton.

Dinner Parties Precede Informal Ski Talk at Junior League Headquarters

EVENING EVENTS . . . sponsored by the Junior League . . . are few and far between . . . most of their committee activities being confined to morning and afternoon hours . . . so-o-o-o-o the trio of informal ski talks . . . slated for successive Monday evenings, beginning tomorrow, are of outstanding interest.

A great many dinner parties are being planned before tomorrow evening's "opening." Among those entertaining large groups at the League are Mrs. Francis H. Cummings . . . chairman of the committee directing the interesting enterprise . . . Betty Soule, Betty Dumaine and Josephine Emery.

A number of notable men . . . well-known for their interest and proficiency in skiing will officiate on the various evenings . . . Maurice Osborne is to be master of ceremonies tomorrow night . . . introducing the speakers . . . Dr. Charles Lund, and Charles N. Proctor.

Mr. Proctor speaks on proper equipment and methods of preventing accidents . . . while Dr. Lund will tell how to diagnose the case following an accident. A ski movie follows the talk.

Another interesting lecture course . . . sponsored by the League . . . opens Tuesday morning at eleven . . . when Edward Weeks talks on modern books. Other dates are January 5 and February 16.

Among those who will be on hand to hear Mr. Weeks' first lecture are Mrs. Edward L. Bond, Mrs. Southworth Cowden, Mrs. Francis H. Cummings, Mrs. E. B. Dusten, Mrs. Richard T. Flood, Mrs. James D. Graham, Barbara Horton, Mrs. Franc D. Ingraham, Mrs. Henry Jackson, Jr., Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard, Mrs. Atherton Loring, Jr., and Marjorie Motley.

The season's second exhibition at Junior League Gallery opens on Tuesday . . . continuing until December 12 . . . when Frank Benson's etchings and Francis G. Shaw's carved birds will be on display.

One of the most fascinating of lectures is on the cards for tomorrow afternoon at three . . . when Miss Christine Woolett opens her Mount Vernon street home for the second in the series of Mrs. Harold Hoeber's talks on the "History of Cosmetics."

Among the prominent socialites interested in what Mrs. Hoeber has to say are Mrs. Folsen Cabot, Mrs. Herbert Tucker, Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Ralph Weld Gray, Mrs. J. Lovell Little, Mrs. Wilbur Higgins and Alice Merriam . . . one of our outstanding post-debutantes.

SHINING BRIGHTLY in debdom is Nancy Lynde Cochrane . . . the junior Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman's vivacious blonde daughter. This important little bud has already been feted at several affairs . . . next on the list is a dinner dance at the Pickman town house . . . slated for December's first Friday evening. Nancy . . . newly-elected member of exclusive Vincent Club . . . assisted in seating the fashionable audience turning out for Wednesday's opening concert in the Boston Morning Musicales series . . . always gala occasions.

Chapin Sisters to Enter Social Whirl

TWO CHARMING debutante sisters . . . Hope Hastings and Ruth Elkins Chapin . . . are slated to make their formal entrance into the social whirl on Friday . . . via afternoon tea at "Paignton," Crescent Hill, Springfield estate of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Chapin.

Coming on from New York for her sisters' presentation party will be Mrs. Joseph Morrill, Jr. . . . the former Julia Chapin . . . who will assist in receiving the guests.

Instead of the usual flock of bud pourers . . . Mrs. Chapin has invited some of the debutantes' mothers to preside at the tea table on Friday.

The Chapins . . . popular members of the smart summer colony at Winnna-on-the-Cape . . . have a winter place at Mountain Lake, Florida, and shortly after the turn of the year they will depart for the Sunny South . . . where there will be much informal entertaining for the debutantes of the household.

Another first-year-out party scheduled for Friday is the luncheon which Mrs. P. Somers Smyth is giving at the Algonquin Club in honor of her daughter, Noel.

Noel . . . a freshman at Vassar . . . will have to take her fling at the gay debutante party whirl during the brief Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday season.

The Thanksgiving Day tea at which Alison Kimpton . . . youngest daughter of Dr. Arthur Kimpton of Beacon street and Norwell . . . was to have made her curtsy to the elite . . . has been indefinitely postponed.

Phyllis Howe, "Breezy" Coolidge and Elizabeth McKean are among the Boston debbies journeying over to New York this week for the purpose of seeing two prominent Gotham buds "come out."

On Friday evening Renee van Nydeck Schanck . . . who summers on the North Shore with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Schanck . . . will be presented at a brilliant dance at the Pierre . . . sharing honors with Joan Fairchild Long . . . daughter of Captain Byron Andrew Long and Mrs. Long of New York.

And the following evening Cornelia Kellogg . . . daughter of Mrs. Frederic R. Kellogg of New York . . . steps aboard the social merry-go-round via a fashionable dance.

Other girls going over for the parties are Patricia Phelan and Evelyn Lilly.

Smart Set Chat

By THE CHAPERON

WHEN OUR BRIGHT AND SPARKLING YOUNG smart setters tire of the aimless social butterfly existence . . . job-hunting seems to be the cure . . .

According to rumor . . . Lucile Swift is toying with the idea of swapping the giddy social whirl for a whirl at business over in New York . . . commercial photography is in her mind . . .

She's tall and slender with a deal of charm and a decided flair for wearing smart clothes in a smart manner . . . so this second daughter of the George Hastings Swifts . . . of Commonwealth avenue and the North Shore . . . may be peeping out from the fashion magazines in the near future . . .

In the meantime . . . blue-eyed Lucile is glimpsed about at all the smart night spots with young Philip Melanethon Tucker . . .

There are two other daughters in the Swift family . . . Eleanor . . . a student at Vassar . . . and Ruth (Mrs. Errett Van Nice of Chicago) who is celebrating her very first wedding anniversary today . . .

A while back Catharine Pentecost got herself a job on the selling staff of one of our exclusive Boylston street jewelry establishments . . .

Titian-haired Carol Smith . . . who became a "working girl" a year or two or three ago . . . has recently been elevated to an executive post in a downtown specialty shop . . .

Ellen Gray's still combining stocking-selling with her studies at Radcliffe . . . she curtsied to the elite two seasons ago via afternoon tea at Brookline Country Club . . . made the Junior League . . . and took active part in all things that interest the yearly debutante crop . . . such as ushering about at benefit affairs . . . parading chic clothes for "sweet charity" and numerous other events with a philanthropic twist . . .

One of our outstandingest post-debs is on the road for a well-known magazine . . .

Patty Preston is seriously thinking about crossing the ocean to study drama over in gay Paree . . . so many of our junior smart setters are theatrically-inclined . . .

Mrs. Cobb Chilton looks after the publicity for Ten Acres and Towne Club . . .

Modeling Dame Fashion's newest and most intriguing creations for a weekly stipend is a popular pastime for the bored social butterfly . . . interior decorating is another.

A Bit of This and That

GLIMPSED MRS. SAM WARREN'S new hair-comb at the theater 'tother evening . . . a nicely waved center part bob . . . worn a bit fluffy about the ears . . . ever so much more becoming than the sleek back-from-the-forehead coiffure she's been affecting of late . . . beige satin elbow-length gloves with her dark brown evening gown . . . moleskin collaring her dark coat . . .

Her daughter Anne . . . tall, languid and blonde . . . wore the dress of the evening . . . shimmering lavender satin printed in rose pink floral sprays . . . tiny little tailored bow finishing off the high upstanding neckline . . . she's to be the future Mrs. Philip Saltonstall Weld.

Julie Barbour . . . the Thomas Barbours' popular debutante . . . at same show in daytime tweeds . . . Also Camilla Alsop wearing black crepe afternoon dress and small black turban . . . and Mary Elizabeth Sears . . . in brown and beige print . . . glittering pendants ornamenting her ears . . .

First Morning Musicale

PROBABLY NO OTHER philanthropic venture brings out such a representative assembly of social importants as the Boston Morning Musicales . . .

So utterly enthusiastic was the fashionable audience on hand for Wednesday's gala opening concert of the season in Hotel Statler's Imperial ballroom . . . that the two artists, Jan Smeterlin . . . noted pianist . . . and Szigeti . . . Hungary's greatest violinist . . . were obliged to give several extra encores . . . all of which made the program one of the longest Boston Morning Musicales this writer ever remembers . . . beginning promptly at eleven . . . the clock ticked around to almost one before the celebrated musicians made their final bows . . .

Mrs. Elliot Spalding journeyed over from New York for the concert . . . looking especially well in Persian-trimmed broadcloth . . . short jacket of Persian with the senior Mrs. I. Tucker Burr's black wool dress and hat . . .

Mrs. Ernest Blaney Dane, Jr. . . . the famous Barbara Welch . . . was the essence of spring in colorful sports suit of red, black and white checks . . . vivid red blouse . . . plain black antelope crowning her unusual beret of the same material as her suit . . .

Mrs. Philip Stockton and daughter, Margaret (Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Jr.) strolled out to the foyer for a cigarette during intermission . . . small black turban topping the former's black crepe dress . . . matching green velvet collaring Margaret's bottle green box coat suit . . . no hat on her fair curls . . . mink coat covering Mrs. George Shaw's rust crepe . . .

Mrs. James J. Phelan . . . smart as always . . . in tunic coat of natural gray broadtail collared luxuriously in silver fox . . . rhinestone clasp fastening the wide belt . . . perky nose veil on her becoming black chapeau . . . just back from one of her frequent jaunts to New York, she's planning another week after next . . .

Mrs. Charles T. Gilbert . . . smartly outfitted in black caracul coat and black peaked turban . . . was among those glimpsed lunching in the Statler dining-room at the close of the concert . . . also Mrs. Lawrence Black . . . in dark red ensemble . . . and Mrs. Adolph Leeds, wearing good-looking Russian tunic coat of natural Persian . . . fashioned with full puff sleeves.

Xmas Seal Sale Aids Children

ONE MILLION Christmas Seals must be sold in northern Worcester County this season if the Northern Worcester County Public Health Association is to realize the sum of $10,000 which is needed to carry on its campaign against tuberculosis next year.

The proceeds of the 1936 Christmas Seal Sale will be devoted to the sending of 60 under-privileged children to the summer health camp at Ashburnham for eight weeks; carrying on a Health Educational campaign in the school and among adults; providing tuberculosis clinics for adults; school chest clinics; school lunches; tonsillectomies; clinics and other medical care.

Included among the seal sale chairmen taking active part in this anti-tuberculosis campaign are: Mrs. John Eaton, Miss Carolyn Lewis, Miss Helen Doane, Mrs. Albert Stone.

Cavalry Horse Show Plans Of Interest

THE RAPIDLY growing list of reservations for season boxes for the ninth annual 110th cavalry horse show at the Commonwealth Armory, December 2, 4, 5 and 6, and the number of entries received from eastern horse owners presages a great outpouring of society at the winter season's first indoor event.

Plans are well under way for a gala session, many box parties have already been arranged and considerable interest is being manifested in the many social functions, including the horse show dinner dance, one of the colorful features of the indoor horse season.

Judy King of Atlanta, Ga., will present her horses at the Chicago show preceding her showing in the city. Many other exhibitors who have already entered the local show, or signified their intentions to include Webster Knight II, West Warwick, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Edmund P. Cassell, Providence and Seekonk, Mrs. Florence F. Dibble, Newburyport; Ursula and Elsa Burkhard, Dr. Frederick B. Good, Arthur J. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kaiser, Bethel, Conn; and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kennedy of Brookline and Southboro.

There are many challenge trophies up for competition this year as well as many cups, donated by locally prominent horse people. In addition, there are two $500 stake classes for three-gaited horses and hunters. Invitations have been extended to the Hunt Club classes to Myopia, Norfolk, Dedham, Groton, Cohasset, Jacobs Hill, Watertown, Ct., and Millwood Hunt clubs.

Mrs. Jesse Wilson To Preside at Session

A DEPARTMENTAL conference for the eighth district of the State Federation is scheduled for Monday, November 30, in Waterfield hall, Winchester, with the Fortnightly Club playing hostess.

The morning session at 10:30 o'clock will open under the leadership of Mrs. Jesse S. Wilson, director. Mrs. Edward R. Grover, president of Fortnightly, will welcome guests and Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, General Federation director, will bring greetings.

Others who will attend the assembly and speak briefly are Mrs. Olaf Hoff, Jr., Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth and Mrs. William J. McDonald.

Mrs. John A. Jennings will conduct an institute at 11 o'clock. Those participating will be Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Mrs. Eliot B. Scudder, Mrs. Philip H. Tirrell, Mrs. Miles F. Kedy and Mrs. George E. Hutchins. Their talks on club work will be followed by a discussion period.

Presiding luncheon Mrs. George W. Morris, chairman of American citizenship, will introduce Miss Mary L. Guyton, state supervisor of adult alien education.

Departmental round tables will open the afternoon meeting at 1:45 o'clock. Health subjects will be discussed by Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, and Dr. Herbert L. Lombard of the State department of public health. They will be presented by Mrs. William T. Hanson of the health committee.

Mrs. W. O. B. Little, head of the international relations department, has charge of a playlet, "Enemies," which will conclude the afternoon. Those taking part are Beatrice Budd, Eloise Graves, Dorothy Howard and Ada von Rosenvinge, all members of the Fortnightly Club.

The day will close with a message from Mrs. John H. Kimball, president of the State Federation.

Illustrated Talk At Dorchester

THE REGULAR meeting of Dorchester Women's Club will be held at the clubhouse Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Irving W. Brown, chairman of the educational committee, will have charge of the afternoon.

An illustrated lecture will be given by Thomas Cooper, Jr., on radiotelephone, a late invention.

Plays Feature Auburndale Drama Day

MRS. JOHN H. HARDING, drama chairman of Auburndale Women's Club, will have charge of the program for president's day, on Tuesday.

At 1:30 there will be a dessert social, and following this at 2:30 the regular business meeting will be held.

Two one-act plays will be presented, both coached by Mrs. Herman Krueger, vice-chairman of the drama committee.

The first, a comedy, entitled "They're None of Them Perfect" by Sophie Kerr, is produced by special arrangement with Samuel French. The cast will include Mrs. John F. Wheelock, Mrs. James Dunlop, Mrs. Arthur G. Lanagan, Mrs. George W. Armstrong, Mrs. Edmund I. Wilson, and Mrs. Lawrence L. Fidalgo.

By way of contrast, a drama entitled "The Heathens Are Coming," by Alice Williams Chaplin, will follow. This play won the first prize in the Massachusetts State Federation's Play Writing Contest, and is presented by arrangement with Mrs. Chaplin. The players are: Mrs. Herman Krueger, Mrs. Theodore L. Fowler, Mrs. Clifford P. Parcher, Mrs. Ralph W. Phipps, Mrs. George N. Segars and Mrs. Paul Ransom.

Guests of honor are to be Mrs. Herbert F. French, third vice-president of the State Federation; Mrs. Benjamin D. Miller, director of the twelfth district, and Mrs. J. Earle Parker, president of the Newton Federation.

Zonta Members Meet Tuesday

ON TUESDAY an interesting program is planned for the Zonta Club of Boston at the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Boylston street, at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The president, Anna Stovall-Lothian, will preside. Clifton Joseph Furness, author and lecturer, will speak on "Psychology in the New Biography."

Evelyn Duncanson, soprano, will supply the music.

Members of Boston's Zonta have received an invitation to meet an outstanding member of Zonta International, the Honorable Agnes Macphail, Canada's first woman member of Parliament, who will be entertained this afternoon from 4 to 5:30 o'clock at the James House, Northampton, by the Zonta Club of Northampton.

'Come and See' Tours for This Week

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS will bring little lull in the endeavors of the Community Crusade for Human Needs which will continue its metropolitan wide program throughout this next week. Crusade gatherings will be held in several neighboring towns, speakers will continue to carry the message of human needs into far corners, and the "Come and See" tours will take visitors behind the scenes in new hospital, neighborhood house, day nursery, youth center, family welfare unit and many another of the 104 agencies in Greater Boston to the 1937 Community Fund.

Tomorrow is a popular day for Crusaders. Dedham folk will gather in the First Church Parish House at 3:30 o'clock for a program following the general theme, "Crusade Lights — Love and Gay." Mrs. James A. Nelson of Brookline will speak.

Medford Women's Club House will be the scene of another crusade gathering, at 3 o'clock with Mrs. Hazel C. Gow as the guest speaker. Costume Parade For Juniors In Quincy

AN unusual feature of Tuesday's meeting of Quincy Woman's Club Juniors will be a costume parade. This is being planned by the membership committee, Irene Weise, chairman.

Costumes will range from the Stone Age to the Twentieth Century, representing a period, a trade, or Grandma. Each member without a costume of some sort, will be fined 10 cents.

Those on Miss Weise's committee are Mildred Folger, Catherine Long, and Mrs. Evelyn Shea. The meeting will be at 3 o'clock in the clubhouse on President's lane.

There will also be a talk by Mrs. John R. McPherson, president of Germantown Garden Club, on "Thanksgiving Table Decorations." She will be introduced by Evangeline Nicolle, chairman of the family welfare committee.

This committee is also sponsoring the food donations to be brought in for the Family Welfare Society's Thanksgiving baskets.

5:30 p. m. — WAAB — "News Comes to Life," featuring news of the world in dramatized form with music.

6:30 p. m.—WEEI — Robinoff and his violin and Jan Pierre, tenor.

7:00 p. m.—WNAC—Jack Benny, Mary Livingston, Don Wilson, Kenny Baker and Phil Harris' Orchestra.

7:30 p. m.—WBZ—Ozzie Nelson's Orchestra; "Believe It or Not" Ripley and "Ripley's Count of Cowsings, as guest of honor.

7:30 p. m.—WEEI—Phil Baker with Beetle, Bottle, the "Jack" dongs for all time, if words seem. He refuses to revive the "Wanna Buy a Duck" line that made him famous, even insisting that this is the time of year to be talking turkey. If Rodney Dangerfield are to be dispossed at all. So it will go with him when he carves out his comedy design (WEEI) at 8 o'clock tonight.

Once again the weekly concert (WNAC) that supplies striking music for listeners between 10 and 11 o'clock will turn to a great symphony orchestra for the featured offering tonight at that time. The Cleveland Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Rodzinski, is to hold forth, whole glamorous Gladys Swarthout provides the vocal soloing. Gladys is flying from Hollywood to Cleveland for the occasion.

Increasing rapidly is the patronage of WMEX by dialers. If fan mail is still a good broadcasting barometer, the independent Boston outlet is steadily on the rise and doing well by dialers with added Inter-City network features from New York as well as some striking local fare.

Phil Baker is sent upon Thanksgiving flavor, that is, after a fashion. He has some "Courtship of Myles Standish" color to register by radio (WEEI) for his 7:30 to 8 o'clock followers this evening.

Breaking a six months' snooze, a remarkable son of Watertown, Wisconsin, one Arthur Gehrke by name, comes to the "We, the People" broadcast today (WBZ) at 5 o'clock, to tell us about himself and how Morpheus has insidiously influenced his life. He's the fellow who rocks off on his slumberland migration every year and snores the winters away. It was the Presidential election noise that woke him up for his 1936 stay-awake. He hasn't been able to get back to sleep since.

Nelson Eddy, baritone star, will sing a group that ranges in character from Negro folk songs to grand opera in his broadcast featuring Franklin Wolfe, soprano, and Josef Pasternack's orchestra, meaning tonight (WEEI), from 8:00 to 8:30 p. m. It's the "Open House" airing.

The program will open with Eddie and Ralph Vasbinder. Following this will be "Bone Come A-Knittin'," a Negro character song by Jacques Wolfe, the arranger of "Shortnin' Bread." Next will be Eddy's rendition of the aged "Vagabond Song" from "The Vagabond King."

Fleeting Flashes

Mme. Hobson, Tom Powers and the famous "Westminster Choir" of Princeton, N. J., are the highlights of the "Mobilization for Human Needs" half hour (WBZ and WEEI) ready and waiting to be heard tonight at 7 p. m.

Major Bowes and his popular "Capitol Family" group are celebrating their 20th year as an air attraction, the observance to be broadcast this morning.

Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone in a British drawing room drama, with English accents and all, that's the fun-makers' promise (WNAC) for the 7 o'clock ringing this evening.

Terry O'Toole, of the "Irish Echoes" impression (WAAB) lets it be known that the boxing boys from Old Erin are accepting his studio hospitality to point out how they punched their way to prominence and America. Two of them at least will be with Terry today for his thirty-minute "shillelagh" at 5:30 p. m.

Much in the tradition of the Thanksgiving Day spirit may be looked and intended for through the sound assertion unfolding today and tonight. Among them in the program plan to make the "Community Sing" activities (WEEI) into a sort of Pilgrim and Plymouth Rock reflection, stuffing between 10 and 10:15 this evening.

Robinoff and his violin are getting the program featuring Ethel Waters as guest star, 1:30—WBZ—Musical Guess Who?—Contest program starring well-known dance band stars.

When it comes through from WCOP studios that an appealing air talk on "Our Massachusetts Banks and Bankers" is to be made today at 1:15, with Professor Biagio Di Venuti as the speaker, Professor Di Venuti is the instructor of banking at Boston University.

This Ear That Air

Another of those finely fashioned "Captain Diamond" radio stories is all about an Irishman in China, so they say, and 2:15 this afternoon (WBZ) is the time. First of the half hours in this renewed Sunday series came through last week and it was a wow from beginning to end. Something truly splendid as dial diversion.

Joe Penner has deserted his "duck" dongs for all time, if words seem. He refuses to revive the "Wanna Buy a Duck" line that made him famous, even insisting that this is the time of year to be talking turkey. If Rodney Dangerfield are to be dispossed at all. So it will go with him when he carves out his comedy design (WEEI) at 8 o'clock tonight.

FRED AND FRIEND WIFE

Andre Kostelanetz Made His Own Way

They work together, do lots of make believe quarreling, but the devotion between Fred Allen and Portland Hoffa, is one of the most romantic associations in all broadcastingdom.

By Harriet Menken

FIVE years ago I wandered into a rehearsal at the CBS studios. A quiet, unassuming looking gentleman was wielding th ebaton. "He's marvelous," I said. "Who is he?" "His name," someone replied "is Andre Kostelanetz."

Since that long ago day Andre Kostelanetz has become one of radio's most celebrated conductors.

In addition his name has been linked in romance, for over a year with a world-famous operatic star. The question as to whether or not they have already exchanged wedding rings has set a continent buzzing.

"We work nicely together. She is a wonderful person, human and sincere. But we are not married. Some day? Who can say? Our plans are formative."

I was born in St. Petersburg, the city which was next called Petrograd," Andre informed me. "I played piano when I was four years old. In fact, I was what you call an infant prodigy. I gave my first public piano recital at eight years of age. I wasn't a bit nervous, I am never nervous performing. That quality has stayed with me.

"I became interested in conducting there. I watched it. I studied it. Eventually I became assistant conductor and chorus master at the Grand Opera House. When it closed for lack of funds in 1922, I came to America. I had several unsuccessful auditions here through which I naturally contacted singers. I began as an accompanist and coach then. Finally, in 1929, I said to myself: 'Radio is what I want.' Accordingly, I went after a job in radio. I got one doing everything—conducting, arranging, what didn't I do! I've been in radio ever since then," said the gentleman who, four days a week, coast to coast, each Wednesday and Friday night.

When he isn't working, Andre likes to drive—very fast—in the country. He likes to take pictures. I remember, years ago, he showed me a remarkable collection of photographs that he'd taken himself.

"I learned to fly last year, too. I like it," Andre said to me. "But when I went on my recent weekly visits to Miss Penn (she was in Hollywood) I went on a regular passenger service. Yes, I sneaked over the Grand Canyon every Saturday for months," the conductor said laughingly. "I took the trip so often that I never had to look at my watch. I got to know just by looking out over the country, where we were and what time it was." As a matter of fact, Kostelanetz never looks at his watch—even while conducting either programs.

You Can Have a Good Head of Hair

YOU were born with the scalp structure necessary to grow hair. Your hair DID grow, until some disturbance causing dandruff, itching scalp, or falling hair made it impossible for your hair-growing structure to continue to function normally.

Remove the cause of stunted hair growth and your hair will continue to grow. Thomas treatment does precisely this. It overcomes the conditions which cause dandruff, scalp itch, and falling hair. It revitalizes your scalp—makes it vigorously healthy, and permits hair to grow again on thin and bald spots. Come in today for a Free scalp examination and see for yourself what this reliable 18-year proved treatment is doing for thousands of others and what it can do for YOU.

'Winterset' in Its Film Form

By Leo Gaffney
Drama Editor

WHEN the New York drama critics' circle named the play of "best play" on Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset" last season, the effect was electric.

What had been regarded by the general playgoing public as a grim and rather arty adventure in poetic drama—to be indulged only by the few who go in for such things—became immediately an exciting hit, and business at the ticket windows improved enormously.

"Winterset" was then taken out on the road—to Boston, to Chicago and to other key cities—and many more weeks of playing, many more dollars of profit, and a purchase by the rich movies was the result.

A season previous to that something similar had happened in the film trade. Two bold, almost brazen, youths had had the temerity to put a picture called "The Informer" into production, a picture that by all the so-called movie standards flirted with disaster in the face of Providence.

It is the boy did not meet the girl in time-honored manner, and none of the other familiar formulas put in an appearance. There was no star as such and the principal player was Victor McLaglen, who at that time was pretty much on the wane with the populace.

Too, the subject matter, the Irish rebellion, was a fearful thing and could abound on the producers in no ugly way. With fear and trembling "The Informer" was released and business was, as they say in the trade, far from hot.

• • •

IT WAS then that the critics, Frank Merriwell all, stepped manfully into the breach and saved the day for "The Informer." Fond type-writers all over the country rumored a masterpiece of great proportions and soon "The Informer" was the best picture of the year.

To most backers "The Informer" had been sadly wrapped up and placed on the shelf, but not it came again—and to more business than it had ever dreamed of.

With the film production of "Winterset"—it began here at the Keith Memorial the night before Thanksgiving—another brave attempt will be made to provide the screen with serious drama, and without the well-known movie name in the cast.

Utilizing the three principal players of the stage production of "Winterset," namely Burgess Meredith, Margo and Richard Clarke, the film is left with no "draw" of any kind to commission exhibitors to book it on the strength of its players before they have heard of Maxwell Anderson or his play.

It is a daring experiment, but the film-makers of "Winterset" RKO are relying on the public to discern the high quality and blankness nature of their product. They are relying, too, perhaps on the critics to consult their conscience and once again do their duty in the cause of truth and beauty.

AND SO, affecting verisimilitude, this department announces that it has seen the film of "Winterset" and can call it good. This is not to say that the picture has all the power of the original, for there were spectacles in the play that would be near too strong for the screen; it is enough that the essential matter remains. And that is of the most importance.

There is a happy ending, too, that was not part of the play and does not now belong in the film. But "The Informer" also was guilty of an illogical and sentimental ending, the only sop to movie tradition.

However, as some sage has remarked, we can't have everything. At least we can't have everything all at once. There is enough excitement and pure truth in the film of "Winterset" to keep you occupied and thoughtful from its vivid beginning through to if not including, its adroit end.

We will get better pictures only when we show signs of wanting them. Therefore, if you are interested in the improvement of the films, tired of all the fiction and frivolity—which is nothing more than mob anesthesia—you are urged to see "Winterset" on the screen. By so much you will be voting against trash; you will be voting your guilt by Truth, and thereby be encouraging the producers and the critics who like to think they are doing theirs.

Repertory of Ballet Russe

By Ruth Marsters
Music Editor

THE REPERTOIRE of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe's five-day engagement at the Boston Opera House which opens on Tuesday evening consists of 15 productions of immense variety of interest.

Among the five ballets to be presented here for the first time, "Symphonie Fantastique" and "L'Apres Midi d'un Faune" are perhaps the most keenly anticipated owing to the high success they have enjoyed in Europe, and more recently in New York.

"Symphonie Fantastique" is Leonide Massine's latest work, and is considered by many his greatest. It is a danced interpretation of Berlioz' symphony of the same name with scenery and costumes designed by Berard.

The ballet is in five movements and depicts the dreams of a neurotically sensitive young musician, during a deep sleep induced by a draught of poison which he has taken, intending to end his life.

The first movement, called "Visions and Passions" depicts his gentle longings; the second, a ball amidst the confusion of which he loved one appears; the third, "In the Country" is a pastoral idyll in which the loved one is present. In the fourth movement, "The Procession to the Stake," he dreams that he is being led to the stake as a consequence of having murdered his beloved one.

In the last movement, "The Witches' Sabbath," he dreams he is at the witches' dance. The loved one is seen again but has become vulgar, trivial and grotesque and appears amid the shrill laughter and discordant cries of macabre spirits.

"Symphonie Fantastique" will be given its first Boston performance on Thursday evening with Massine in the role of the Musician, and Tamara Toumanova in that of the Beloved.

• • •

"L'APRES Midi d'un Faune" is a revival from the Diaghilev repertoire. The choreography, which interprets Debussy's music, was written by Nijinsky who first danced the role twenty-five years ago.

Lichine, who will appear here in the leading role, will wear the original costumes which Nijinsky used. The decor is by Bakst. The story, based on Mallarme's poem, takes but twelve minutes to enact.

• • •

ON THE opening night four ballets, "Cimarosiana," "Choreartium," "Spectre de la Rose," and "Le Beau Danube" will be given.

In "Choreartium," Massine's choreographic interpretation of Brahms' Fourth Symphony, Tamara Toumanova, David Lichine, Tamara Grigorieva, Nina Verchinina, Riabouchinska, Shabelevsky, and Paul Petroff will dance the leading roles.

In "Cimarosiana" a ballet divertissement in eight parts, Tamara Grigorieva, Lubov Rostova, Anna Adrianova, Alexandra Danilova, Tamara Toumanova, Shabelevsky, Jasinsky, and Petroff will participate.

"Spectre de la Rose," a romantic ballet set to Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" will be danced by Irina Baronova, who takes the part of the young girl and Paul Petroff in the role of the Spirit of the Rose.

Alexandra Danilova will appear at the street dancer in "Le Beau Danube," the role which she has made famous. Riabouchinska appears as the daughter, Leonide Massine as the Hussar.

Efrem Kurtz will conduct "Choreartium" and "Spectre de la Rose." Antal Dorati conducting "Cimarosiana" and "Le Beau Danube."

Wednesday afternoon the same program will be presented with the omission of "Spectre de la Rose."

• • •

WEDNESDAY evening's program lists "Concurrence," a ballet by Andre Derain; "Scheherazade," a choreographic drama set to Rimsky-Korsakov's music, and "The Afternoon of a Faun," previously mentioned.

At the special matinee on Thanksgiving Day, "Les Sylphides," "Boutique Fantasque" and "Prince Igor" will be presented.

David Lichine's new ballet, "Le Pavillon" set to the music of Borodin, will be given its first Boston performance on Thursday evening, with Baronova, Riabouchinska, and Lichine in the principal roles.

In addition to this and the "Symphonie Fantastique," "Le Beau Danube" will also be given on Thursday evening.

For Friday evening, "Pavillon," "Prince Igor," and "Spectre de la Rose" are scheduled, with "Prieorne" as the novelty.

"Lake of Swans" will be given its only performance on Saturday afternoon. Also to be included on this program are "Scheherazade," and "Aurora's Wedding."

Lady Precious

CONSTANCE CARPENTER has the title role in "Lady Precious Stream," Chinese play in English, at the Plymouth, November 30.

Jan Smeterlin Recital And Other Music Notes

THIS AFTERNOON at 2:30 in Symphony Hall, Jan Smeterlin, the eminent Polish pianist and perhaps the greatest interpreter of Chopin today, will play a program devoted to the works of that composer.

Mr. Smeterlin has selected for performance on this occasion, Fantasie, Opus 49; Impromptu, Opus 36; Two Mazurkas, Opus 33 No. 2 and Opus 63 No. 2; Ballade, Opus 23; Prelude, Opus 28 No. 15; Sonata, Opus 35 in B flat minor; Theme Etudes (trois) Opus 25 No. 1, Opus 10 No. 2, and Opus 25 No. 11, and Andante Spianato et grande Polonaise brillante, Opus 22.

THE Boston Symphony Orchestra, returning from concert appearances in New York, Newark, Penn., New Haven, and Hartford during the week past, will give a concert in Symphony Hall, on Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening, and the second concert of the Monday evening series in Symphony Hall on Monday, November 30.

Richard Burgin, assistant conductor of the Orchestra, will conduct the concert in Sanders Theater, as well as the pair in Symphony Hall on Friday and Saturday, the program to be the same for each concert.

Bach's Organ Toccata in C major, arranged for full orchestra by Walter Woehne, the Hungarian composer; symphony No. 1 in G minor by Emil Kaliwoda; and Hindemith's Symphony "Mathis der Maler" first introduced to Boston by Mr. Burgin in December 1934 at his request.

Serge Koussevitzky will conduct at the Monday evening concert, the program to consist of Mozart's Symphony in C major, No. 34 (K. 338); the Second Piano Concerto of Leo Sowerby, and Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor, Joseph Bonkowski will appear as soloist in the Sowerby concerto which will be given its first public performance at this time.

AMONG other important music events to take place in Symphony Hall in the near future is the concert appearance of Serge Rachmaninoff on December 6, the program to be announced later.

The Don Cossacks are scheduled for a single appearance in Symphony Hall on December 18.

The current season marks the seventy-transcontinental American tour of Serge Jaroff's world famous Russian Male Chorus. This season's tour, which opened in Pennsylvania, will last fifteen weeks, and entail more than thirty-three thousand miles of travel by train and bus.

JORDAN HALL events: On Tuesday evening, Marjorie Fulton, violinist, and Mack Harrell, baritone, will give a joint recital. The program includes works by Bach, Brahms, Hugo Wolf, Gustnonoff, and other Russian composers.

When Jean Bedetti, solo 'cellist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, gives his final recital in Jordan Hall on December 1, he will introduce to Boston the Sonata "Arpeggione" by Franz Schubert. This work was written in 1824, the year after the invention of the Arpeggione, a guitar-violoncello of six strings. The instrument, now obsolete, closely resembled a guitar but was played with a bow.

Although there is an arrangement of the work by Casadesus, Mr. Bedetti is to play the original version. The balance of Mr. Bedetti's program traverses a wide field, and includes Zighera will be assisting artist.

FRANK GAZER, 20-92 American pianist, who enjoyed a most successful debut in Town Hall last month, will be heard in his first Boston recital in Jordan Hall, December 2, in a program devoted to Chopin, Bach, Brahms, and Schubert.

• • •

RUTH KLUG, pianist, fourteen-year-old girl-child, will appear in her first Boston recital on December 4 in Jordan Hall. The program will include works by Beethoven, Bach, and Chopin.

• • •

ANIA DORFMAN, Russian pianist, will make her Boston debut in Jordan Hall on December 9.

EDDIE CANTOR and his famous porcelain eyes will be with us for Thanksgiving. See him and his radio friends on Thursday at the RKO Boston. Five shows every day!

Study of Gangster Life In the Drama 'Dead End'

GANGSTER LIFE has received a great deal of literary attention in American books, plays and pictures, an attention that has been the despair of the professional reformers and the delight of those who enjoy the adventurous, hazardous and the nefarious.

From the beginnings of general literature, as a matter of fact, the life of the outlaw has always been attractive. The lusty swagger, frequently debit with pirates, and the folk tale with Robin Hood, while the picaresque novel, imported from the Spanish, dazzled the readers of "Jack Wilton," by Thomas Nash, as far back as the Elizabethan Age.

Only recently, however, has the gangster become an important protagonist in American letters. Though there have been plenty of criminal characters in native fiction, most of them were lone wolves, men like "Raffles," "Jim the Penman" and "Alias Jimmy Valentine," or members of small groups that worked on their own as in "The Deep Purple."

The subsequent development of large gangs, with national tie-ups, has resulted in the organization of a new type of underworld, as powerful in its arrangement and so perfect in its procedure that it presents an entirely fresh sociological study and one rich in fictional possibilities.

ONE of the first books to treat gangs from the standpoint of plot, expose was "Haunch, Paunch and Jowl," and one of the first plays to furnish the lowdown was "The Racket," a play that has never been surpassed for its accuracy in portraying gangster types and methods.

Meanwhile, Harold Asbury wrote the standard work on gangs, "The Gangs of New York," a book that is said to have resulted in many threats to his life.

Later works strove to develop the subject even more thoroughly with the result that "Blind Alley" offered a psycho-analytical study of the gangster, traced his evil beginnings and the mental twists that made him a criminal.

The first comprehensive work, however, on the young gangster, is Sidney Kingsley's play, "Dead End," which Norman Bel Geddes is presenting at the Colonial, commencing on November 24th. Here the embryonic criminal is revealed with all his potentialities for crime in the community.

His character is studied from all standpoints, sympathetically, rationally, socially and dramatically. And the results of this consideration are gratifying. For they indicate that the adult gangster can be blotted out of society if the young one is checked.

• • •

NOR is the task as hopeless as it may at first glance seem. Proper housing, good schools, social service, civic co-operation, all these influences directed toward children in the tenements and slum districts can do much toward making them worthy members of society and champions for right, instead of for wrong.

Bette Davis Takes Her Medicine With a Smile

By Louella O. Parsons
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 21.

BATTLES with studios are costly affairs as Bette Davis has found to her sorrow. Even if you win, you lose, because it takes cash to fight legal cases. Bette's suit against Warner Brothers is said to have cost her more than $50,000 in cold cash, and that's a lot of money in pounds, francs or dollars.

In addition to the legal fees she paid to England's most expensive barristers, she has been off salary at Warner's for months and months.

She fought because she thought she was doing the right thing—against the judgment of her friends, advisers and business representatives. But she is a girl who knows how to take it, and one cannot help but admire the manner in which she accepted her legal defeat.

She lost her case, she lost her chance to make pictures for Twickits in England at $200,000 per, but it hasn't soured her. She learned a lesson and she is coming home to continue making pictures for Warner Brothers, coming back with a smile and no bitterness in her heart.

Naturally, the suit cost Warner Brothers a pretty penny, too, because they had to fight it in England. But they won, and the winner can afford to be gracious.

No statement has been forthcoming from Bette for the reason no one on the Warner lot is willing to say anything until she knocks at the front door and says, "Here am I."

• • •

BUT I happen to know that "The Changeling" is being prepared for her, that the Salted calf will be killed and that Bette will come back to a studio prepared to welcome her with open arms. I am glad, too, for she is a fine actress and deservedly won the Academy award last year for "Dangerous." She is a courageous little person, too, even if she has been wrong and it takes courage to say "I'll take my medicine," which is virtually what Bette said when the unfavorable verdict was handed her.

Maybe Bette's experience will help other stars, who feel they have grievances and want to take them to court. Remember, any salary in four figures sounds like a lot of money to the outside world. It's only in the movies and radio that those fabulous salaries exist, and to the clerk making $25 a week and to the judge whose income is much less it sounds like too much money to treat lightly.

Bette's reason in filing the suit seemed too flimsy once it was told in court. Maybe she hadn't thought how little excuse she had for a law suit when she decided to fight the company which took her when she was an unknown actress and brought her into the limelight as a great star.

I cannot feel that James Cagney can be entirely happy in spite of his nonchalant air and ready smile. Jimmy is such a fine actor and did so well in Warner Pictures. Maybe he felt he had made too many—maybe he didn't like his working conditions—but he was making $4500 a week, which is a lot of money, and had built up a tremendous reputation for himself. He has cast his lot with a new and untried company which has yet to make itself known and which has not yet proved its mettle as a sales organization nor yet as a producer of good pictures.

WE USED to get dozens of letters about Jimmy constantly but now very few inquiries come to this desk. You can't stay off the screen and retain your popularity—the public is too fickle. As any battle is a costly affair and players should enter into one without due consideration. I don't know any player who was ever benefited by the walkout procedure. Some way it just doesn't pay.

Valentino tried it and lost every penny he had in the world and never really succeeded in coming back. Other players have tried to step out of contracts but it has never worked out because most people feel a contract cannot be ignored. Bette Davis is coming back and well all be glad to see her. In a short time her law suit will all be forgotten and Bette will once more take her place as a Hollywood favorite.

San Carlo Opera

WHEN the San Carlo Opera company comes to the Boston Opera House for a week's engagement, beginning on Monday evening, December 7th, it will give eight performances, six evening and two matinee.

NINI VERCHININA is but one of the lithe and lovely ballerinas to be seen in the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, which begins at the Boston Opera House on next Tuesday.

The New York Scene

THE SHOW-SHOPS: Mme. Nazimova returned in a revival of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," and The Death Watch agreed that it had its Ibsen downs . . . The huge complaint was directed at the supporting cast, most of whom were found very WPA . . . Mr. Lockridge, the Sun's Sentinel, also accused Nazimova of prettying up Hedda, whom she refused to offer as "the most hateful woman in literature" . . . The Group Theatre brought Paul Green's "Johnny Johnson" to the 44th Street temple, where it excited the First Audience into bravos, and the critics into semi-bravos.

Mr. Woolcott, in a lecture accused the critics of not being superlative enough when the occasion demanded, and not sour enough when the show was looking for trouble . . . On the other hand, several laymen called the critics various names, asserting that they were never so unfair, etc., as they are this season, being responsible for most of the closings . . . This is not accurate . . . Take "Night Must Fall" frixample . . . The London importation won much favorable support from the reviewers, except three, and it joined the casualties list eight after eight thin weeks . . . On the same subject, "Red, Hot and Blue," which drew orchids for its stars, and only tepid praise for its accessories, turned out to be so much of a thumb-to-the-nose for the critics . . . It is a big hit, according to the ticket brokers, who would be happier and richer if the Plymouth Theatre (where "Tovarich" is the town's No. 1 sellout) had as many seats the demand for them.

The Wireless

Frank Parker, tenorole, now a Paul Whiteman feature, fails easy on the ear with: "The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful" . . . Jack Pearl's return to the networks was auspicious . . . The radio reporters bowed low before Milton Berle. One of them was amused because Phil Baker used "Gimme With the Wind," a run, one week after Berle employed it, and Berle was praised for beating other rivals to other quips . . . About the other quips, comment is reserved. But the first mentional gaff was submitted by Parkyakarkus to this column a month earlier, where Mr. Pinelli or his authors no doubt first saw it . . . The networks revealed nothing of importance during the week, except a new pronunciation of a famous name . . . A WNEW announcer called it: "On the Banks of the Wabash."

The Magazines

"I'm Glad My Husband Died in the Electric Chair," by Mrs. Otis Bartlett of Oshkosh, Wis., in "Real Detective," is the most unusual document in a long time . . . Meyer Levin, one of the reputable reporters, distinguishes himself again with his piece about Lady Jane in Esquire for December . . . Mid-West Pictorial reports that anti-Semitic propaganda is no longer useful in The Reich, and that more and more Germans are beginning to manifest their displeasure at the regime that's brought the lightening of their purses . . . Going out of their way to help the oppressed sons of Moses . . . Raymond Gram Swing's "Matter from the defeat of Mrs. Florence Kahn, because she was the wittiest member of Congress. Her description of a colleague, to wit: "He is a revolving soapdish. That's because he differs from what angle you look at him he remains a soapdish."

The Craft

The current headlines were pronouncing the divorce of Simpson and Simpson . . . Ina Claire was ribbed hard by Des Moines reporters for being indifferent to them. One paper there felt that the star's angry remarks were caused by the failure of the press to meet her when she arrived . . . The woe of the week was that husband down south whose wife's story (about the dog bringing a newly born baby to her yard) didn't hold up. He told the press that when she was well enough to travel she would simply have to leave—to protect "my good name" . . . A columnist beat his breast the other day charging another columnist with taking one of his themes, and it was all a third could do to keep from mailing him a soda saying: "How do YOU like it?" . . . Buddy Rogers and Mary Pickford confirmed the long time reported betrothal, and we are waiting for one paragrapher to claim having first announced it. Fire in Florida last winter he reported: "There will be no Buddy Rogers-Pickford wedding—this is inside stuff!" . . . "On the Banks of the Wabash."

The Swing Salons

Mitzie Green's mimicry is the new chief attraction at the Versailles. Gomez and Winona dance delightfully and The Meadowbrook lads' crew remains one of the superior orchestras . . . The Cotton Club entices capacity audiences, but if whites are members of the elite and Hollywood . . . Rudy Vallee has joined the French Casbah cast, a lip-top show, and the Parnaside, Hollywood and most of the Jean Alley sucker-traps on 52nd are languishing by . . . The only literature to be found in any of them, however, is at the Cotton Club, a Jack White exotic spectacturs with a word travesty on ditties dedicated to the Scotland, a departure from the usual . . . The accompanying intime revuisical is hurriedly-paced.

Between Covers

From George Bernard Shaw's "Dramatic Opinions and Critical Essays" (Brentano's):

I recommend the series of dramatic essays of which this book is the third volume to all actors who pretend to be indifferent to the opinion of such persons as myself; for it proves beyond contradiction that the actor who derives enduring fame must look to it at the hands of the critic, and not of the casual playgoer. Money and applause he may have in plenty from the contemporary folk; but posterity can only see him through the spectacles of the elect: if he displeases them, his fault will be inferred with his bones. The world believes Edmund Kean to have been a much greater actor than Junius Brutus Booth, solely because Hazlitt thought so. Its belief in the inferiority of Forrest to Macready is not its own opinion, but Forster's. The one failure of Charles Kean's life that matters now is his failure to impress Lewes in anything higher than melodrama. Some day they will reprint my articles; and then what will all your puffs and long runs and photographs and cheap successes avail you, O lovely leading ladies and well-tailored actor-managers? The twentieth century, if it concerns itself about either of us, will see you as I see you. Therefore study my tastes, flatter me, and see that your managers are conscious of my existence and impressed with my importance.

In another section of today's Boston Sunday Advertiser other tributes are published hailing the great churchman. Among those which are cherished by His Eminence are the messages from Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill, Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, former Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts; Rt. Rev. S. G. Babcock, Suffragan Bishop (Episcopal) of Massachusetts, and Rabbi Harry Levi, Temple Israel, Boston.

The quarter of a century that has elapsed since Archbishop William O'Connell was made a member of the Sacred College of Cardinals has been one of the most eventful in the world's history, and each of the 25 years as prince of the church has been a fruitful year in the life of Cardinal O'Connell.

Promotes Peace

And during the past two years and five years His Eminence has failed to orient from his untiring effort in serving God and his fellowmen for the promotion of peace and better understanding among all peoples of the world.

His whole life has been one of preparation and consecration for the great work he has accomplished—all of which he firmly believes was God-given to him.

United States Senator David I. Walsh, in a tribute to the Cardinal at the occasion of his silver jubilee in the Cardinalate, sent the following message to the Boston Sunday Advertiser:

"For half a century Cardinal O'Connell has been an unmistable leader of influence and force, an eminent instructor in the ways of truth and justice, of charity and tolerance—in fact in all the ways of Christian faith.

"More than any other citizen, lay or clerical, has he fearlessly exposed the defects and errors of present day society. He has sought resolutely to elevate the whole tone of the public mind with practical and specific counsel.

Another New England representative in the United States Senate, Jesse H. Metcalf, United States Senator from Rhode Island said:

"It is with pleasure that I congratulate His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell on the 25th anniversary of his elevation as Cardinal.

"He certainly deserves great praise for his work as a churchman and as a citizen, and I hope that in the years to come he will have health and happiness, so that he may long continue his good work."

Rhode Island Speaks

From Rhode Island came a batch of congratulatory messages including those of Governor-elect Robert E. Quinn and United States Senator Peter G. Gerry.

Mr. Quinn said:

"His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as Cardinal this year.

He has done magnificent work as a priest and as a high official of the Catholic Church of America.

"The people of Rhode Island desire to express to him on this happy occasion their grateful appreciation for his past services and their sincerest hopes for his continued health and happiness."

Senator Gerry eulogized the anniversary of the Cardinal with the additional laudatory statement:

"I am glad to extend hearty congratulations to Cardinal O'Connell on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his appointment as Cardinal.

"He stands out pre-eminently as a Catholic leader and spiritual adviser by his dignified and forceful administration. At all times he has shown himself as a man of keen intellectual depth and breadth of vision. His influence and example have been of great value in a time when a return to fundamentals is essential.

"We all hope that he will be given many years to continue his work as a churchman and that the people may have the benefit of his excellent judgment and his leadership."

From Major Murphy

Major Francis P. Murphy, governor-elect of New Hampshire said the following:

"This day must be one of great happiness to the distinguished and holy man who as priest and ecclesiastical prince has merited the growing esteem of the people of New England for a quarter of a century. Their congratulations and their blessings. Catholics and non-Catholics alike, will today be showered upon His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell.

"The unusual financial, organizing and business ability which have marked his long administration of the Archbishopric of Boston will be praised by those who have an intimate knowledge of such church affairs. Inspiration will be drawn from the extraordinary career of one who has risen from poor mill boy to the dignity of the cardinalate.

"To those of us who live at some distance from Boston, however, the outstanding feature of Cardinal O'Connell's twenty-five years is the wonderful influence for good which he has so serenely exerted in all parts of New England. No more striking demonstration of this influence could be had than the pleasure and the interest which have greeted the cardinal's annual radio broadcasts given from Boston every New Year's Eve over a long period.

"He has received every conceivable honor at the hands of his fellow citizens who wish for him, as I sincerely do, the opportunity of many additional, healthful years to continue his work among us."

From Maine Senator

United States Senator Wallace A White of Maine paid glowing tribute in the following message:

"Through these years Cardinal O'Connell has exerted always a profound influence upon the secular life of our people. He has studied the industrial and social problems of our time with analytical and comprehensive mind.

"His wide knowledge and soundness of judgment have made substantial contribution to our material progress. He has sought knowledge and has made truth known to man. As a Priest of the Church he has brought spiritual truth, inspiration and comfort to all within the sphere of his beneficent influence.

"Massachusetts' other representative in the United States Senate, Marcus A. Coolidge from his home in Fitchburg, praised the Cardinal's leadership in the church and in matters of state.

"It gives me much pleasure to pay tribute to His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell on the occasion of his Silver Jubilee.

"His work in the cause of charity and his devotion to the people of Massachusetts has been outstanding.

"His sound leadership in the church and matters of State is admired by all. Cardinal O'Connell has the confidence of people of all denominations who hold him high in esteem".

Vermont Governor

Countless more outstanding in national and state politics, took this opportunity of the Cardinal's anniversary to utter sentiments of gratitude for the rich and useful benefits which he has effected.

Governor Charles M. Smith of Vermont, in appreciation of his untiring efforts to blend the religious, moral and political qualities of the nation and state, sent the following message:

"Twenty-five years is a long time to render such distinguished service to the country and nation as has His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell.

"It is with sincere regards and pleasure that I join in congratulations and best wishes to him."

Bishop Edward Lawrence, Catholic spiritual leader in Massachusetts diocese, Bishop Henry K. Sherrill, joined with his predecessor, Bishop William Lawrence, in praising the work of His Eminence and wishing him further success.

Bishop Sherrill, recalling the part the Cardinal has played in upholding the ethics and moral welfare of the community, as well as its religious, said in a glowing tribute:

"It is a great pleasure to join with many others in felicitating His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell, upon the 25th anniversary of his appointment as Cardinal.

"During these years, he has played an increasing influential part in the community. Recently his opposition to a state lottery, and his demand for honesty in political life have elicited wide approval on the part of thoughtful citizens.

"I trust that His Eminence may have many more years of helpful and constructive leadership."

Rt. Rev. S. G. Babcock, Episcopal Suffragan Bishop of Massachusetts, was in full accord with the opinions of his religious contemporaries in remarking:

"It is peculiarly fitting that the Boston Sunday Advertiser should publish a special section in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the appointment as Cardinal of His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, whose term of service has been notable for wisdom, efficiency and devotion to the highest interests of the community as well as of the Church.

"May he have many more years of service in his high office."

Rabbi Levi Speaks

Members of the Jewish faith also have always held His Eminence in the highest regard and respect.

One of its foremost members, Rabbi Harry Levi of the Temple Israel, Boston, summed up the remarkable spiritual and cardinal influence of His Eminence in words of unstinted praise.

Patrick A. O'Connell, still another prominent Catholic merchant, and president of the Boston Retail Board, stated his regard for His Eminence in the following words:

"Cardinal O'Connell has probably done more than any other one man to bring about mutual understanding and good fellowship between Catholics and non-Catholics. He has been, in Boston Always ready to espouse every cause for public benefit and with a special interest in the relief of the underprivileged and less fortunate, he has well earned the trust and affection which a host of friends from all races and all creeds feel toward him.

"The Catholic Church is fortunate in having as a leader a man whose accomplishments are so varied, whose interests are so broad. His concern with the teaching of youth, especially in that branch which fosters the ideal of good citizenship, has resulted in long, forward steps in the educational world.

"His executive and organizing ability, so rare in a clergyman, is responsible in no small degree for the invaluable services he has rendered the Catholic church and the community at large.

"Another side of his character reveals Cardinal O'Connell as a musician, and a fine one, as a patron of literature and the fine arts.

"Blessed with greater and more diverse talents than is allowed most men, Cardinal O'Connell has used them unselfishly, extravagantly, for the service and betterment of mankind. It is hoped the good Lord will give him health and strength to carry on for many years to come."

Also in the realm of life paid high tribute to His Eminence without the slightest reservations. Colonel Thomas Cochran, members, took the occasion of the Cardinal's silver jubilee to express public and high regard for this great personage.

Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology paid high tribute to His Eminence as a "great humanitarian."

Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, added further to the great list of well-wishers by the Catholic prelate with the following eulogistic remarks:

"To Cardinal O'Connell, I extend genuine felicitations upon the attainment of his silver jubilee in the cardinalate.

"It is a pleasure to know personally and in a friendly way this distinguished citizen of Boston, who, with the infallible instinct of a bird of passage, has moved steadily on from one post of ecclesiastical service to another until today he occupies the most influential American position in a great church.

"I hail you, good neighbor and friend, and extend to you, with my felicitations, assurances of my goodwill and good wishes."

The Knights of Columbus Catholic organization in which the Cardinal has shown such interest and in which he has given great assistance and aid, extended its praise and congratulations through many of its leading members.

K. of C. Tribute

Patrick J. Moynihan, state deputy, stressed the invaluable assistance, which he has given to the order, and expressed the collective gratitude of every member of the society.

"His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell has contributed so much to the progress of the Knights of Columbus in Massachusetts," Moynihan said, "that our members are glad to join with his fellow citizens in observing the 25th anniversary of his illustrious Cardinalate.

"It is a fact that His Eminence has helped our organization with counsel, voice, pen, and when need was, with purse. Our sense of gratitude to him is the more profound because the Knights of Columbus is but one of many lay societies enjoying the favor of his guidance and benefactions.

"Cardinal O'Connell has multiplied and administered the sacred agencies and institutions of his great archdiocese with a marvelous industry, wisdom, vigor, and executive skill. His leadership has been fruitful in accomplishments.

"The achievements of this great Prince of the Catholic Church have redounded to the temporal, as well as the spiritual, good of the community and have made all civic-minded citizens his debtors.

"The Knights of Columbus of Massachusetts reverently salute Cardinal O'Connell, scholar, philosopher, patriot, distinguished exponent and defender of liberal arts, a man among men, and, above all, a priest of priests. Our wish and prayer is that he may be spared to us in multos annos."

Business Praises

The professional estate of finance and commerce also uttered its due praises in behalf of His Eminence and his glorious silver anniversary.

Notable among his well-wishers in the field of business were Eliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, who emphasized the immeasurable public service which Cardinal O'Connell has performed; W. Cameron Forbes, noted Boston merchant and former United States Ambassador to Japan, and Frank D. Comerford, official of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston.

Mr. Wadsworth, in his tribute, said:

"The twenty-fifth anniversary of the appointment of Cardinal O'Connell is an important and significant occasion.

"Through his long service in a position of high authority, Cardinal O'Connell has contributed to the community a splendid service, both in his clerical capacity and as an outstanding citizen.

"The Boston Chamber of Commerce extends its cordial greetings to His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, and hopes that for many years to come the city, state and nation may have the benefit of his leadership and far-sighted public service."

Mr. Forbes embellished further on the congratulations and praises that have emanated from the heart of the business world with the following utterances:

"It gives me the greatest pleasure to pay a tribute to our most distinguished fellow citizen, Cardinal O'Connell.

"His service to his church are well known and extend far beyond the region over which he exercises control.

"Besides being a distinguished churchman, he is a great citizen, whose beneficent influence extends to civic as well as to religious affairs.

"It is a pleasure to pay this tribute to him."

Mr. Comerford also paid tribute to His Eminence in glowing words, as he said:

"The communities included in the Archdiocese of Boston have been very fortunate in the spirit and leadership of His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell.

"His scholarship, his ability to convey his thoughts in language that all can understand, his administrative ability and his devotedness to high public service are everywhere recognized."

(In the Editorial Section of today's Boston Sunday Advertiser other tributes of praise from other state and civic leaders will be found.)

Message From Hurley

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
OFFICE OF THE TREASURER

CHARLES F. HURLEY
TREASURER AND RECEIVER GENERAL

November 19, 1936.

Managing Editor,
Boston Sunday Advertiser,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I am most happy to extend my felicitations to His Eminence, the Cardinal Archbishop of Boston on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his elevation to the Cardinalate. Massachusetts appreciated the honor paid it at the time of his elevation by Pope Pius X. We appreciate it more today.

The Church of Boston has been singularly favored under the direction of the ecclesiastical genius of His Eminence during more than twenty five years. More than this the Commonwealth has come to welcome and appreciate the profound and stabilizing influence of one of its truly great citizens.

Very truly yours,
Charles F. Hurley

CHARLES F. HURLEY, governor-elect of Massachusetts, sent a letter of felicitation in respect to the anniversary of the elevation of Cardinal O'Connell, of which the above is a facsimile.

"EPOCH IN HISTORY"

"The Silver Jubilee of His Eminence, William Cardinal O'Connell, marks an epoch in the history of the Church in America which will be recorded as illustrious because of his labors as churchman, statesman and educator.

"It is with pleasure that we add our sincere congratulations to the many messages of public appreciation and felicitation offered to His Eminence on this unique occasion of his Silver Jubilee as a Cardinal Prince of the Church."

REV. L. J. GALLAGHER, S. J.
President, Boston College

Fast Trains To Florida

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 21—The fashionable trek to the sunshine resorts of Florida is this season to be inaugurated by de luxe transportation, which in equipment, comfort and name will be a genial reflection of the southlands themselves. Fragrant of the gentler moods of Florida's winter climate, new air-conditioned trains will start the holiday romance by pure air and even temperature from northern points.

In opening their new chapter of fine train history for the coming season, the Seaboard Air Line Railway will this week announce two "Orange Blossom Specials," one for both the East and West coast Florida service. The two de luxe units of its "Florida's distinguished winter train" will initiate their southbound season December 10th, featuring "one night out" service from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and intermediate points, with through service for the resorts of both coasts and Central Florida.

Leaving New York's Pennsylvania Station at 12:50 p.m., the "Orange Blossom Special" for the East coast will accommodate passengers for the West Lake Wales districts, Palm Beach and the Florida cities of Miami and the West coast dominicals leaving at 1:30 p. m., will serve Savannah, Jacksonville, Clearwater, Ridgelaire, St. Petersburg, Tampa, Sarasota and Venice and West Coast resorts, Florida, which is preparing for its greatest season, will be specially favored by beautiful trains scheduled for this winter, which promise to make travel life as sparkling and spontaneous as that enjoyed in the sumptuous resorts," says L. R. Powell, Jr., receiver of the road, who classifies air conditioning equipment as science's latest contribution to travel romance and a fitting wintertime introduction from northern cities of a Florida on wheels."

While railroad officials are announcing de luxe transit facilities, Florida resorts are on the threshold of their best tourist season in history.

Cameronia Yuletide Trip

A SPECIAL Christmas sailing by the modern, spacious liner Cameronia from Boston December 12th, to Ireland, Scotland and England, is announced by the local office of the Anchor Line at 33 Devonshire street. The Cameronia will proceed from Boston direct to Londonderry, as well as calling at Belfast and docking at Glasgow, from which point London is only a few hours away.

Passengers will find the holiday spirit in evidence immediately on boarding the Cameronia, and in a further desire to retain this happy feeling the Anchor Line representative, Mr. James Ballantyne, manager of the tourist office department, in New York, will be on board to look after the comfort of passengers during the voyage.

This Yuletide sailing extends to tourists an opportunity of witnessing the traditional ancient Christmas observances in the border districts of Scotland. Beginning December 20th, a series of holiday excursions to the borderline villages will be operated from Glasgow. Of all the districts of Scotland the borders are in diversity of their winter charm and interest the most invaluable. It is around the venerable villages of Coldstream that the ancient customs of the holidays are still kept alive.

Tailored to the British Isles will be calls to visit the Cathedral of Trees at Glenruthes, Argyll, Years of inner and artistical cultivation have gone to the "building" of the cathedral, which is unique among churches.

Furness Host to Tour Agents

THE FURNESS Bermuda Line will be host to a group of over 100 travel agents at a dinner at the Parker House this evening. James Finlay, passenger traffic manager of the line will come over from New York for the meeting, as well as his assistant, Walter G. Morgan. Also expected are Herbert D. Blackman, manager of the three company hotels in Bermuda and Ronald Stemp, manager of the Bermuda Railway. Richard K. Holden, New England manager of the line will preside.

16 Cruises Via National

PROMPTED by the most successful summer season in its 15 years of operation, the National Tours, Ralph Dellevie, president, announces a new series of 16 South American and West Indies cruises. The eight, 10 and 13-day cruises will be in the Canadian National S. S. Prince David, which has won the praise of thousands of enthusiastic passengers during the last three months, having sailed over 45,000 miles on cruises in this time.

The Prince David will sail Dec. 5, on a 13-day cruise visiting Havana, Kingston, Panama Canal and Cartagena, Columbia, South America.

The first cruise of the new winter series will be the gala 10-day Christmas and New Year's cruise sailing Dec. 24, returning Jan. 3. This cruise will visit Nassau, Bahamas (Paradise Beach), Kingston, Jamaica, and Port au Prince, Haiti, en route to Havana. The Prince David is the only ship visiting these three interesting ports on a 10-day Christmas cruise.

Commencing January 9, and sailing every other Saturday up to and including June 12, the Prince David will make a series of 13-day cruises to Havana, Kingston, Cristobal, Panama Canal, Magdalena river and Barranquilla, Colombia, South America. They will feature for the first time a cruise up the Magdalena river to Barranquilla.

The transatlantic liner Caledonia has also been chartered by the National Tours for a six-day cruise to Bermuda, sailing February 18. Passengers will spend two days in Bermuda on this cruise.

MAKE your trip to the South this season a part of the vacation itself. Arrive at your destination relaxed and refreshed after three and one-half days of restful sea cruising.

Perfect service — tempting meals — comfortable staterooms — deck sports — music — dance and entertainment, everything for your comfort and pleasure and, surprisingly, at less cost than the overland route.

Two sailings make it possible to take your car with you to the South at very little extra cost. Fine broad highways radiate from Savannah to all parts of Florida and the South. Simply drive your car to the pier in Boston and away at Savannah. Practically all points in Florida are within a day's drive of Savannah.
